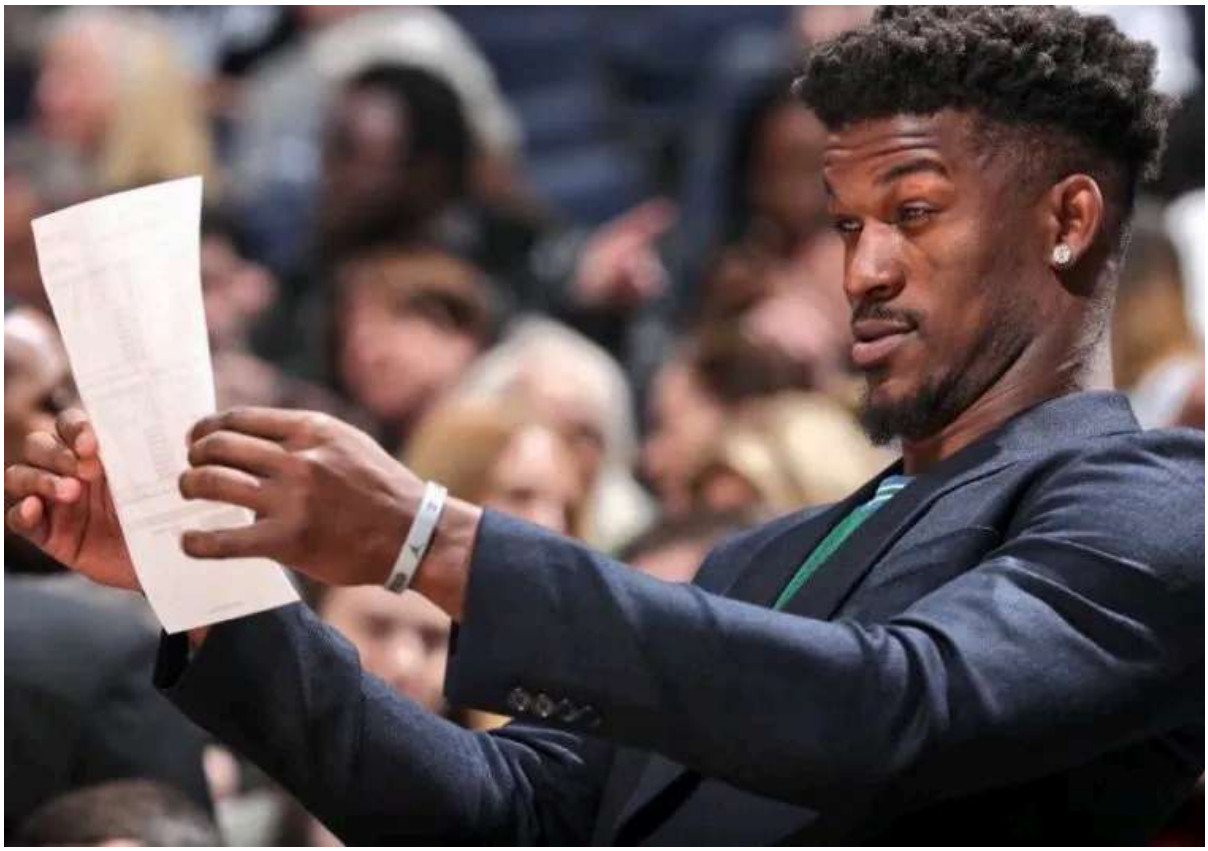
This could be a season for the ages. No other way to put it. Greg beats Perlman by a score of 63.72 to 63.62. 0.10 difference. Tied for the smallest differential in league history. Our second 0.10 matchup this year!!

- Me waking up and seeing another all-time matchup that is going to take my he and soul to write late into the night

- We have six players on the two MNF games across the two teams
  - Greg has Baker, Nico Collins and Seahawks DEF while Perlman has Darno Cade Otton and Ka'imi Fairbairn
    - Reading this and realizing there is going to be a lot of math being done the ESPN app



Well, guess I should get started. The Seahawks vs. Texans game ended later than th other game so might as well start there. I wonder if anything interesting happe…OH MY GOD…IT HAPPENED AGAIN!!!!!

IT

AGAIN

SOME OF YOU MIGHT REMEMBER THIS MATCHUP FROM EIGHT YEARS AGO:

Single Week, All Time	Bot Life vs. Minimum Wagers - Week 7, Season 2017	0.10

- The record for the closest matchup in league history, since tied, but never beat
  A matchup so classic, there is only one man who can define it.

Let me remind you what happened…

- Week 7, 2017, Eagles vs. Washington Redskins on MNF. That's right, "Redskins that's how long ago this was and how old this league is. If the league is this old imagine how old you, the reader, are.

- In this game, the Eagles did well. So well, that they had the luxury of … kneelin the ball to end the game.

That’s right ladies and gentlemen, the “Carson Wentz Kneel Down Game”

For those of you that don't remember, Perlman lost that devastating matchup again Flo as he had Wentz whose kneel down ended a fantasy football tie on the last play the game.

- Perlman remembering this matchup

- Flo remembering this matchup

- Abram being reminded that we were so close to a tie in this matchup and then remembering that Leo started LAC defense against the Chiefs instead of Arizo DEF against the lowly Saints and robbed us of an epic week 1, 2025 tie.

At this point in NXS league history, week 7 of the 2017 season, write ups were limit to one or two key matchups a week. Flo came up to me after this game and told me had to make sure I wrote about this matchup because it was so crazy. This kick star the full write ups that we have today - so that no crazy matchups would ever be mis

Hey, Abram, fun nostalgia, but what does this have to do with the current matchup

Oh, my sweet summer child

- Perlman seeing this

- Anyone else reading this who is not Perlman

Unlike the Carson Wentz Knee Down Game, Perlman wasn't tied before the knee down. He was up by 0.1, then tied, then lost by 0.1.

It gets even crazier somehow. The drive before this kneel down, Greg was winning 2.9 points. The Texans scored a TD to close the gap from 27-12 to 27-19. That incre from 12 to 19 docked Texans DEF by three points. That's how Perlman was even in position to lose that game.

It happened again. 8 years to the day. And Perlman was on the losing side of both!

From Manhattan to Middle Earth to losing th most heartbreaking fantasy football matchups known to man : David Perlman's Big Move to hating Carson Wentz and Sam Darnold
